

Nathan Trice, a U.S. Naval veteran and an Inter-faith/Inter-spiritual minister through One Spirit Seminary program, is the organizer for the New York Anti-Racist Coalition for Faith, Ethical and Spiritual Communities. Its mission is to help build and develop anti-racism leadership and organizing within each of the coalition's participating religious and spiritual communities and institutions. He's also the artistic director and founder of nathan trice / RITUALS: a dance, theater & music group, whose mission is to develop and present artistic / educational programs and performances that reflect the importance of empathy, compassion and understanding for one another, in the pursuit of global humanism. Trice is also the co-founder of ACRE (Artists Co-creating Real Equity), a multi-racial, intergenerational group of artists and cultural workers committed to organizing for racial equity in the influential realms of arts and culture: arts & education, funding, media, curation, casting and arts space.
